

Commercial Value Creation: From missed forecasts to commercial proof

Board and strategic investor in a commercial-stage healthcare technology company

Take control of commercial execution, accelerate paid and repeat sales, and build a credible 12-month outlook ahead of a major ownership decision.

Sales more than doubled quarter-over-quarter

The Challenge

A differentiated healthcare technology company had multiple go-to-market pathways, but performance was consistently below plan. With limited runway and a major ownership decision approaching, the board needed answers:

Can this business generate repeatable revenue?

Which commercial motions are worth backing?

What can we credibly expect over the next 12 months?

What Beigale Delivered

01. Reset the commercial objective

Shifted the near-term goal from unrealistic targets to proving commercial viability and repeatable revenue.

02. Built the operating model

Defined the priority pathways, funnel stages, proof points, account priorities, targets and owners.

03. Ran commercial execution

Led the weekly operating cadence, challenged stalled opportunities, drove next actions and redirected effort.

04. Rebuilt the forecast bottom-up

Created a 12-month outlook based on actual account progression, conversion evidence and repeatability.

QOQ SALES GROWTH

Commercial proof across multiple go-to-market pathways, with initial paid business converting into repeat business, and a 12-month forecast management and the board could defend.

How We Operated

Beigale did not act as an external advisor. We assumed an interim commercial leadership role and became part of the operating process.

01. Assumed interim commercial leadership

Stepped into the business as senior commercial operators, working directly with management, the commercial team and the board.

02. Got into the work

Worked directly with sales and account owners on live opportunities, blockers and pathway progression, not just through management reviews.

03. Created board-level visibility

Built a clear way to communicate commercial status, progress, risks and trade-offs, translated into a bottom-up outlook the board could use for strategic decisions.

04. Built stronger commercial capability

Put the team on track to operate with clearer priorities, stronger accountability, better pipeline discipline and a more evidence-based approach to execution and forecasting.

The Beigale Model

Senior commercial firepower, on demand.

When a company needs more ownership and executive bandwidth than the existing team can provide, Beigale can step into an interim leadership role, run the work directly, and create both execution momentum and board-level clarity.
